NUTRITION QUESTION BOX

Can we use too much salt? Miss Joyce Lewis, Nutritionist for the Home Economics Service of the Alberta Department of Agriculture says that we can. Salt in moderation is all right, she says, but the habit of always reaching for the salt shaker before we even taste our food is a bad one. Too much salt may stimulate the digestive system and interfere with the absorption of foods. It may also cause a retention of water in the tissues, interfering with other body processes requiring water.

Salt is composed of sodium and chlorine, two minerals both essential for our bodies, but both widely distributed in our natural foods. Profuse sweating deprives the body of salt, so a good supply of salt is desirable in very hot weather or when doing strenuous work which causes sweating. Ordinarily, additional salt is not necessary and using it too profusely is a questionable practice.

CURRENT EXPORTS THREE TIMES 1938 VOLUME

Latest figures tabulated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reveal that the total Canadian exports for the four month period from January to April of this year amount to $788,000,000, as compared with $864,000,000 during the same period of 1938.

Wood, wood products and paper led the way, with a total of over $200 million; while agricultural and vegetable products accounted for $170 1/2 million. Other products in which increases over last year were noted are iron and iron products, non-ferrous metals, non-metallic minerals, and chemicals and allied products. A decrease from 1940 totals was noted in animals and animal products, fibres and textiles, and miscellaneous commodities. In every classification, however, the totals were several times greater than for the comparable period in 1938.

KEEP YOUR HEAD

If you get "rattled" or "lose your head", you place yourself at a disadvantage when nerves, concentration and prompt decision are demanded. Medical authorities point out that reaction in an emergency depends in large measure on the state of one's health. Healthy people have themselves completely under control, they don't let temper, or temperament, get out of hand, and they can be counted on for cool and effective action.

"What's the matter, dear? You look flustered."

"Oh I've had a dreadful day! First baby cut a tooth; then he took his first step; then he fell and knocked out his tooth."

"Then what?"

"Then he said his first word!"

Sandy and Lizzie were strolling along one of the city streets looking for a picture show. At last they came to one over the entrance of which was a large placard: "The Woman Always Pays."

"We'll go in here," said Sandy.

Mike met Bob on the street one day and asked, "How's business?" To this Mike replied, "Oh business is very good, I just shipped 50 bulls to market." "Ah," said Bob, "I shipped 60 bulls to market."

"Last week," replied Mike, "I shipped 100 bulls to market."

"And I!" snorted Bob quickly. "I shipped 120 bulls to market." Then Mike thought a moment and quietly retorted, "You know, Bob, you and I are the biggest bull shippers in Alberta." Then to Millard.

DECONTROL LISTS GOODS AND SERVICES

Following the announcement made in the House of Commons June 9, by Finance Minister Abbott, on the removal of price fixing regulations on a number of items, the Warzone Prices and Trade Board has issued the complete list of those goods freed from price control by this latest step. The new order, No. 737 was made effective June 9 also.

In the food field the list is as follows: honey, natural or processed; butter; casing; cheddar cheese, processed cheese and cream cheese; concentrated milk products of all kinds; ice cream, salt; fresh apples; dates; prunes; canned or frozen peas, cherries, plums; canned soups, poultry products of all kinds and jams, jellies and marmalades except those jams containing either strawberries or raspberries. All jams, jellies, honey as well as butter are also being removed from ration control as of June 9.

In the clothing field some items of minor importance are being removed from price control and include, dressing gowns; women's, m's, girls, and children's bibs, dickers, cuffs, neckwear, collars, aprons, hatters.

In other textiles and leather products, the items affected are bath mats, curtains, dish cloths, dish towels, drapes, toilet seat covers, window blinds, window shades, floor rugs and mats chiefly of cotton; sewing, embroidery and crochet yarns, floss and threads, bobbinets; dress or curtain nets or netting, musquito netting; elastic webbing; hemp; sheepskin shearings, tanned but not further processed than combed or sheared on the flesh side.

In the category of agricultural equipment and supplies, hoes, shovels, and other poultry equipment are the only goods being suspended from price ceiling regulations. Hay, which will soon be coming into high production, is also freed from control.

In the field of household equipment and supplies, fireplace heaters, including grates and baskets are no longer under price control.

Construction products now freed from control in the new order are hardwood lumber, plywood made wholly of hardwood and hardwood veneers.

Turning to non-ferrous metals and their alloys, the new order removes from control, lead, copper and zinc, having only primary and secondary tin and alloys containing more than 95% tin.

In Board Order 711, a control was maintained on newsprint paper when the product was sold by anyone other than a manufacturer and this final control is now suspended, together with all grades of paperboard.

In the section dealing with services, the only important change made in the new order is to free from control the supplying of meals or refreshments in all public eating places. Boarding houses when rooms and meals are supplied for a combined charge remain under price control.

Simultaneously, an arrangement under which retail or wholesale distributors were authorized to purchase dairy butter from primary producers for the account of the Commodity Prices Stabilization Corporation was revoked, effective June 9 also.

Retailers and wholesalers are therefore advised that the Corporation will not accept any further purchases of dairy butter for their account.

This action accompanied the removal of butter from rationing and price ceiling regulations, as announced by Finance Minister Abbott.

This plan, which has been in force since March 1, 1943, was initiated to provide primary producers with a means of disposing of surplus dairy butter at prices in reasonable relation to creamery butter prices.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Minerva's Basket

By ELAINE FRANCIS

MINERVA Miller on her way to stay with the Jordan children paused in front of Decker's Antique shop. By scrunching her neck she could see her clock and its price tag. Twenty-five dollars! When she had sold her possessions to defray the expense of papa's funeral, Decker had begrudgingly given her three. Well, that was the way of the world and no sense complaining. She was a very lucky woman to have found her niche this late in life, and luckier to have saved almost twenty-five dollars from her baby-sitting fees. She stared longingly at the ornate mass of black onyx with cherubs entwined around its base and yearned for tomorrow when it would again be hers.

Mrs. Jordan, a picture in pale yellow and sables, was standing beside her car when Minerva arrived. "Oh, there you are," she called with relief. "I'll be at the Civic Convention, Hotel Taff, if you need me. Mr. Jordan's staying in town so you won't have to fuss. Just give the children-bacon and eggs and put them to bed early. I'll be home tomorrow afternoon. And with that she was gone.

The eight-year-old twins came shrilling out of the house. "How's Minerva, the wise old owl," Billy shrieked, dancing around her.

"Fine," Minerva replied, "and glad to see you." Knowing from past experience how hard it was to amuse them, she suggested taking a walk.

"I won't go," Molly said flatly. "I want to stay right here." She sat on a rigid folding chair, her lips pout and her large eyes staring.

"Those dopey Ryan kids down the block," Billy explained, "are having a party and don't invite us. Molly doesn't want them to see us. Silly goop, who cares?"

But it was clear that he too cared. Why weren't they invited, Minerva wondered, the Jordans were as prosperous and respectable as any of the other families. The answer came as she looked at them. Billy's untidy hair was desperately in need of cutting, his heels were run down and his pants torn. Little Molly's blonde curls were dreadfully tangled in two braids and her dress showed a good two inches of ragged underpants. You'd think they came from the slums, she decided angrily. And all because Mrs. Jordan was so busy with her clubs and committees. They were really good children but others as good had been ruined by neglect.

At least, they were spotless and their hair brushed to a gleam when they went to bed. But long after they had fallen asleep, Minerva sat by the fire, mending their clothes. But it was a hopeless task, they needed complete new wardrobes and motherly attention. Poor darlings, no wonder people called them hoodlums. If only Mrs. Jordan's interest was aroused, there would be great changes. Perhaps, if her pride was hurt... After all her scrimping, give up the clock? The faces of the twins rose before her eyes and she felt ashamed of her hesitation.

The next morning after leaving the children at school, she entered a grocery store on a side street. One she knew Mrs. Jordan never patronized.

Nervously patting her white hair into place under her shabby blue hat, she told the bored clerk to make up a basket. "Nineteen dollars of oranges, bread, canned vegetables and a chicken," she said, placing the money on the counter. A sample bow, no card to be delivered to the Jordan children on Maple Street. Leaning forward she whispered, "It's a joke, you understand, more of a homecoming than a Bon Voyage." And stammering slightly, she added, "Promise never to tell who ordered it. That would spoil everything." The clerk, slightly dazed, agreed.

Having completed her mission, she went back to Main Street walking rapidly with head averted past Mr. Decker's shop. Foolish, no doubt, but she could not bear to see her cherished clock. Its chimes rang out as she passed the open door, and her heart sank. Perhaps in another two months... But if Mrs. Jordan found out what Minerva had done, her baby-sitting career would be over. For a second she was tempted to run back to the grocery store and cancel the order. And what about those poor children, were they to be allowed to grow up ragged and untended, developing all kinds of complexes? Squaring her thin shoulders, Minerva marched on bravely.

Molly and Billy ignored the basket except to enquire some phony ballad. "What is this doing here?" she demanded.

"I'm not quite sure," Minerva replied almost truthfully, for at this minute it seemed a crazy idea. "It came addressed to the children. From some organization, I believe."

"What on earth do you mean?" Mrs. Jordan gasped.

"The delivery boy said," Minerva continued lying painfully, "that some club helping the underprivileged..." "Underprivileged?" Mrs. Jordan screamed. "Miss Miller, you must be mad."

Secretly, Minerva agreed. Fortunately the twins, whom she had purposely not fussed over, came running in to create a noisy diversion. For the first time Minerva saw their mother take a long hard look at them. "You're sloppy," Mrs. Jordan said sharply, "march right upstairs. I'll be up in a second to wash you. And to Minerva, "Here is your money, Miss Miller. Why not take some fruit home with you. Obviously there's been a mistake but since you don't know the name of the store, I can hardly return it..."

Minerva noted the uncertainty in her voice. The more idea of anyone considering her children among the needy had rocked her to the toes.

She was not surprised, therefore, to receive a call from Mrs. Jordan cancelling her services for future dates. "I'm taking the children shopping today and resigning from a number of committees," she explained. "Chairmanships entail too heavy a load."

My meddling, Minerva thought, always results in lessening of my "carriage" trade. But she smiled happily. In other ways it had paid to put all her eggs in one basket.

Second Series Of "Baby" Bonds Will Be Issued

OTTAWA.—The government said that it was considering offering a second series of "baby" bonds this fall which were inaugurated last year to replace victory loans during the war.

A return tabled for Thomas Reid (L.-New Westminster) said: "It is clear that the Canada savings bonds received a welcome and widespread response last year as an avenue for encouraging and assisting regular savings programs of individuals and of providing a safe and readily redeemable small savings bond."

"It appears desirable to continue to provide facilities for such purposes, and it has been decided in principle, therefore, that a second series will be offered this autumn. Details of the issue have not been finally worked out, but will be announced at some appropriate time in the future."

Caught Trout Without Hook

LEWISTON, Ida.—John Olson, 15, was wading in the Clear-Water River when he became frightened by the ugly mouth of a steelhead trout. He grabbed a rock and let fly with perfect aim.

While walking home, the lad had six offers to buy the 13-pound 36-inch trout, but became worried about having taken it without pole and hook.

"I thought sure the fish was going to bite," he said.

Dominion Will Aid Land Development

Increased development of farm lands from British Columbia to Nova Scotia may be undertaken with federal assistance as the result of a government announcement in the House of Commons by the Right Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Dominion Minister of Agriculture.

The Dominion government is prepared to discuss with the provinces concerned plans under which development could proceed over a period to be agreed upon, sufficiently long to bring about the desired results, but not to exceed five years.

Among the possible projects are reclamation of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick dykelands; flood control, land drainage and irrigation in British Columbia; the clearing and breaking of new land for farming all across Canada.

"Any expenditure of money on these projects will be brought before Parliament and legalized through an item on the estimates," said Mr. Gardiner.

In making this announcement, Mr. Gardiner said that the Government has decided not to extend the principles of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act, beyond the established drought and soil-drifting FEPA area in the three prairie provinces.

CANADIAN MOUNTIES GET

THEIR "KIDS" BY TALKS,

MOVIES, AND EXAMPLE

(By T. Morris Longworth)

The older boys showed in the "schoolroom" rear seats, where they could sit up without being caught. The tougher you were, Nelly Police told him, the quicker you could join Tony's gang.

Big guy, Tony. Made six trucks last week swiping stuff from cars. If he was here he could make this guy who was going to speak quit. The guy was coming now. Look what's here — a Mountie! Nelly felt a bristle of interest straighten his spine.

Corporal Quain of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police walked smartly onto the platform. He was dressed in review order — striped Sam Browne, breeches, long boots with spurs, the scarlet tunic.

He was only a handful of years older than Nelly and his crowd. At their age he had been lively enough, and understood. Now he was six feet of muscular peace officer with frank, clean-cut features and disciplined bearing.

"Before I run the sound film called 'Making Mounties,' I'll tell you how this outfit I have the honor to be a member of got started."

Nelly wondered if the Mountie had got wise to the oranges he had lifted from the Greek's stand yesterday. Better listen. Gosh it was as good as a western — policing the Indians, rounding up rustlers, getting promoted, going North and having your own dogs. This was the kind of life he'd like — and be good at.

The movie depicted Nelly's conviction that he clung to the Mounties. He could take it if they could. When the film ended he was arid; one of those horses. The applause showed that all the fellows felt like he did. This Corporal was a swell guy and belonged to a swell bunch.

Look at Jules standing up! He was slightly built, pale. Pulling himself to his full height, he said, "Do you think I'll grow big enough to join the Mounties, sir?"

"You'll never make it! You'll never make it! Sit down!" shouted his companions.

"Who says he'll never make it?" demanded Corporal Quain. "Let me tell you about a young trumpeter I know."

And the Corporal launched on another story.

This scene, with variations, has been carried out many hundreds of times throughout Canada in the past year. One wonders, like Nelly, what the Mounted Police are up to. The Commissioner's report gives the clue:

A few years ago, Deputy Commissioner F. J. Mead conceived the idea that this Force might originate and develop a movement among the youth of the country which in due time would bear fruit in increasing the number of law-abiding citizens and decrease the number of young persons being dealt with under the Juvenile Delinquents Act.

Lanky, energetic Jack Mead had climbed the many-rungged Mounted Police ladder, from constable to second in authority, raising a fine family in repute. He had to deal with hundreds of boys and girls in trouble, and asked himself what it was that these unfortunate lads had that his own children and those of his brothers in uniform enjoyed.

The answer seemed to be, example. Boys brought up in Mounted Police families soaked up discipline and a sense of fair play. They were not afraid of the law, for the law was their father. Yet they learned a healthy regard for going right. They became able, self-respecting young men who would never need a finishing course in the House of Correction.

Since the kids of Canada could not all eat at Mounted Police tables, the next best thing was to take these influences to them. The Force did not want to barge into the work being done by organizations in this field, but it was felt at Headquarters that these juvenile lawbreakers must be shown a new pattern of living. Educational authorities across Canada were consulted and a new approach to the youth of Canada was formulated.

Presently the Nickys and the Marries of Canada were astonished and delighted to have their school routine interrupted by Mounties giving them straight-from-the-shoulder stuff about their work.

The plan had the earmarks of a genius. It was a natural. It offered an irresistible attraction to youth at its most impressionable period. Each ambassador from the hide-to-remember Force looked like a hero, and every often was one. And now there was offering them his friendship. Who could refuse such an offer? In reality this was one of those quiet historic moments that change the course of a nation.

In Saskatchewan alone, 471 talks were given to 19,002 children in the first season of the experiment. Veterans of arctic service told their experiences with blizzards and Eskimos. Officers instilled the dramatic exploits of the Force's history. Films of the work were immensely popular. Police dogs faced audiences with aplomb. Eager listeners heard the great stories of duty carried out. Ambitions kindled.

Quiet periods followed the talks. "Does a Mountie ever come back with out his man?" Reply: "The R. C. M. P. never considers a case closed until successfully concluded, or the culprit is officially listed as dead." "Where's your gun?" Reply: "The work of the moment does not call for gunplay, so not wearing a revolver is a measure of safety." "Why do you wear a red coat when it makes such a good target?" Reply: "During the earliest days of the Force, the scarlet tunic was a symbol of honesty and fair-dealing on the part of the midwives of the Queen, whom the Indians had learned to trust, and it is retained as such."

Fun followed the speakers to their barracks.

Through each of the thousands of appearances, ran the major theme: the policeman wants to be your friend. The policeman is no kill-joy, avid to arrest somebody, but a man willing and eager to be the friend and counselor of every boy and girl. He is a public servant essential to the well-being of the country.

Sergeant W. H. Kelly gave an inspired definition of this officer: "One of the referees in a game whose rules have been made by members of the community for the greater comfort and security of all."

The success of the new movement was almost embarrassing. It looked as if the 3,000 Mounties would have something like a million new friends on their hands. In one community juvenile delinquency was reduced 80 per cent. The hero came worked.

The Mounted Police like it, too. "The more one does of this work the more enthusiastic one becomes," reports Sergeant Kelly. They see the enormous possibilities for good.

IT PAYS TO PLAY

Canadians are going in for fun and physical fitness in a big way, according to a review of the production of toys and sports equipment published by the Department of Trade and Commerce this week.

Post-war public demand, occasioned by war-time restrictions, has sent consumer demand sky-rocketing, and production has more than kept pace. Playing tackle, for example, is now produced by some sixty Canadian manufacturers, compared to approximately twenty before the war. In the output of hockey sticks, baseball bats, archery goods, gymnasium equipment, sportswear, and even .22 rifles, the story is the same. Shorter hours of labour, with more leisure time, and general realization of the healthful benefits of recreation, have resulted in greatly increased markets for recreational equipment. During 1946 this was responsible for an appreciable addition to Canada's foreign trade, with chief export markets in the United States, Newfoundland and South Africa.

The Refugee Problem

MANY OF THE GRAVE PROBLEMS which resulted from the war are still unsolved, and it is evident that it may be some time before satisfactory solutions have been found for all of them. One that is still causing considerable concern is the finding of homes for the many thousands of displaced persons who are still in camps in various parts of Europe. At present there are between 600,000 and 700,000 people in such camps, and Sir Herbert Morrison, director-general of the inter-governmental committee on refugees has predicted that it will be at least three years before homes are found for all these people. Although such large numbers are still homeless, it is evident that much progress has been made since the end of the war in dealing with this tragic and difficult problem, since the records show that 11,000,000 refugees have already returned to their native countries.

Many Look For New Homes

Of those now numbered among the displaced persons are many thousands who do not wish to return to their own lands, and arrangements are now being made for them to be admitted to countries where there is a scarcity of labor. Within the next eighteen months it is expected that several hundred thousand European refugees and their dependents may be taken to Britain. France has plans for bringing in large numbers of displaced persons to work in her industries, while Belgium has expressed the intention of admitting some 35,000 workers, with their dependents. Eight thousand workers have already gone to Holland, taking their dependents with them. It is also expected that some will be placed in South America and the British Dominions.

Some Have Been Admitted Here

In Canada there has been considerable interest in the problem of displaced persons. Already about 6,000 refugees, who are relatives of Canadian citizens have been admitted to this country. It is expected that some will be placed in lumbermen, sugar beet workers, textile workers and others with specialized trades. It would seem heartless, indeed, for Canada to hesitate to do her part in helping to rehabilitate these people who suffered so greatly during the war. The question, however, is related to many broader problems, including immigration and present standards of wages and living. There are many diverse opinions regarding these matters, but it would appear that Canadians should not be unwilling to assist to some extent at least in bringing about an end to this problem, which at best cannot be completely solved for several years.

BRITAIN WANTS TO BUY FROM CANADA

That Denmark will capture the United Kingdom beacon export trade is a wrong attitude of mind and "I am surprised at a note of defeatism among Canadian farmers regarding this business," Sir Andrew Jones, head of a British food mission, said at a reception in Lindsay, Ont. He said the Canadian farmer has the food stuff right at his door, can produce a good export bacon which can compete, and, "we as a people, have a natural preference for Canadian goods. We want to buy in Canada but we must buy on the best market when it comes to price."

Lady Bellringers Welcomed By Church

EXETER, Devonshire, England.—"Women have invaded the belfry," the Bishop of Exeter, Dr. C. E. Curzon, told a conference of the Central Council of Church Bellringers. "I welcome the invading Bellringers in a great exercise. It should be good for the figure."

CHANGE ADVISABLE

A change, rest and recreation is needed at least once a year, say medical authorities. Both mind and body need this let-down, if they are to continue to give the service expected of them.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

FORBEARANCE

To bear injuries, or annoying and vexatious events, meekly, patiently, prayerfully, and with self-control, is more than taking a city.—C. Simmons.

To be able to bear provocation is an argument of great reason, and to forgive it of a great mind.—Tillotson. More love is the great need of mankind. A pure affection, concentric, and forgetting self, forgiving wrongs and forestalling them, should swell the lyre of human love.—Mary Baker Eddy.

It is easier for the generous to forgive, than for the offender to ask forgiveness.—Edward Thomson.

It is not well to see everything, to hear everything; let many causes of offense pass by unnoticed.—Seneca. Have a heart that never hardens, a temper that never tires, a touch that never hurts.—Dickens.

Sun Hatches Chicks

THE HAGUE.—Newly-born chicks seen hopping over a rubbish dump at town in east Holland were believed to have been hatched by the sun from eggs a poultry breeder had thrown away. The eggs had failed to hatch in an incubator.

Some scientists believe the tortoise to be the most intelligent of reptiles.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

Father—Now, son, tell me why I punish you?
Son—That does it. First you found the life outa me and now you don't know why you did it!

A travelling salesman who got married and took his bride South on their honeymoon, visited a certain hotel where, they boasted of the fine quality of their honey.

The first morning, at the breakfast table, the groom said to the waiter: "Sam, where's my honey?"

"Golly, I don't know, boss," answered Sam, "crying like a bride cautiously." "She don't work here no more."

Then there was the over-stuffed dowager who complained that if the photographer took her picture in profile it would show only one eye.

"Never mind, madam," said the photographer, "your profile will show both of your chins."

Woman to Editor—"You should meet my husband. He makes his living with his pen, too."
Editor—"Oh, so he's a writer, too?"

Woman—"No, he raises pigs."

The teacher had asked her class to think up some outstanding examples of wasted energy.

"All right, Freddy, what's yours?" asked the teacher.

"Telling a hair-raising story to a bald-headed man."

"Why do they call it a dental parlor?"

"Fartor is another name for drawing-room."

Bricklayer: "I'd like to work here, but I can't find a place to park my car."
Foreman: "I guess you won't do. We want only bricklayers with chauffeurs."

Sympathizing Friend: "You must miss your husband very much, Mrs. Frowner."
Widow: "Well, yes; it does seem strange to come into the shop and find something in the till!"

A Scotsman was told by his doctor that his wife should have had her tonsils taken out when she was a little girl. He had the operation performed—and sent the bill to his father-in-law!

Folks are getting more business-like in New York. Business man met a friend the other day and invited: "Come in with me and I'll buy you a cup of coffee."
"Oh, just give me the dime," said the friend. "I'm in a hurry."

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT SET NEW RULES OF "WELCOME" FOR TOURIST CAMPS

"Welcome" means little to the tourist who is crammed into roadside shacks, eaten by garbage-bred flies, gipped out of advertised "recreational facilities", and sent home with a bad taste in his mouth. In Canada, he tells his friends, phooey!

To make impossible such references to Ontario's tourist facilities, the provincial government recently passed regulations licensing tourist camps, setting forth standards of service and sanitation, and outlawing misleading advertising.

In so doing, Ontario became the fourth Canadian province to tidy up her visitor industry. British Columbia, Alberta, and New Brunswick have already attended to their house-keeping, and tourist officials are hoping that, with other provinces following suit, the golden postwar tourist egg will never shrink to pullet size.

Ontario's new regulations come in two sections. One deals with licensing, maintenance of camps, registration, enforcement, etc., and is imposed under the Tourist Camps Regulations Act, 1946. The other deals with truthful advertising, and is passed under the Department of Travel and Publicity Act, 1946.

A license is required to operate a tourist camp in Ontario, to start construction of one, or to enlarge an existing one. Persons who operated during 12 months prior to March 31, 1947, and who have not since enlarged them, needn't get a license until March 31, 1948.

In municipalities, licenses are to be issued by municipal clerks; in unincorporated territory, by the district inspector of the Ontario Provincial Police. The issuer must satisfy himself that the applicant is a fit person to hold a license, and that the enterprise complies with provincial regulations and municipal by-laws. He must notify both the applicant and the Minister of Travel and Publicity of his decision to issue or refuse the license. The right of appeal to county or district courts is provided. Fees are $5 on application, $250 for yearly renewal.

Camp operators are required to maintain sanitary facilities in good repair, keep the camp and equipment clean, provide adequate facilities for garbage and dispose of garbage by RETIREES FROM OFFICE—After 17 years' service, Cecil Snyder, seen here, is retiring from his post as deputy attorney-general of Ontario. It was announced at Queen's Park.

B.C. Woman Likes Trapper's Life

VANCOUVER.—Miss Ella Fry packed her newly-purchased "frillies" and a year's supply of red nail polish alongside her cartridge and fur-lined parka here recently and headed back north—for Miss Fry is British Columbia's only registered woman trapper. Thirty years ago, her parents took her to the Alameda district, about 500 miles northeast of here, north of the North Thompson River where she now operates her own trapline.

With no help from "mere men", Miss Fry built 10 log cabins along her trap line where she catches her traps, skins the animals and packs the pelts—all by herself.

But she is by no means a manhunter and packs a large ruby on her capable left hand to prove it. She is engaged to a fellow trapper.

A legend in the North Thompson Country, Miss Fry has been known to don caulked boots and ride the boom with the men and has a 43-pound salmon to her credit for three proud her prowess.

It was she who exploded the theory that a direct shot at a grizzly's head would only glance off the sloping forehead. She did it the hard way, kneeling at 50 paces.

"Only thing I'm worried about," the female Daniel Boone said, "are those big chunks of camp, 200 pounds or so, up in the tree tops. A bit of wind and down they come. They'd drive you 10 feet into the ground."

She looked surprisingly feminine for a woman trapper while she sat in the beautician's chair, but assured reporters it was only temporary.

"No, miss the city? No sir. I wouldn't trade places with any woman, in single or double harness."

PREDICT U.S. TO DEFEND SUEZ LONDON.—British military authorities have revealed a plan afoot whereby the responsibility for military defence of the Mediterranean, Middle East and Suez Canal would be taken over by the United States.

Alberta To Spend $100,000 On Publicity Drive

EDMONTON.—Contract for a $100,000 publicity campaign to promote industrial development in Alberta has been awarded to the Harold P. Stanfield Ltd., advertising agency, after reviewing bids received from all advertising agencies in the province.

The campaign, starting next fall, will run two years. Media will include newspapers, publications, special booklets, films and billboards with the object of promotion of Alberta as the best location in the Dominion for industrial expansion.

Alberta business and industries have been invited to contribute to the campaign on a dollar-for-dollar basis with the Government. Subscriptions are said to be encouraging.

500 A-Bombs Could Destroy Whole World

LOS ANGELES.—Dr. Stafford Warren, former medical chief of the Manhattan Project, warned that the dropping of 500 Hiroshima-size atom bombs would destroy every human being, plant and animal in the world.

Warren, now dean of the University of California at Los Angeles Medical School, told a UCLA atomic conference that even survivors eventually would succumb to the deadly radio-active after-effects.

"Unleashing 250 bombs in the air and 250 under water would wipe out our great cities and create poisonous radio-active clouds which would sweep around the world, raining slow death on every living thing," he warned.

A CONTRA-ACCOUNT

Story told by a Harley street specialist: "At the end of the quarter I sent a lawyer patient a bill for $25 for two consultations for an hour each, and got this reply: 'For time wasted while waiting for appointments which were never kept owing to non-arrival of doctor—approximately seven hours—$35.'"

"COUGAR COLLEGE" STARTED IN B.C.

VANCOUVER—Something unusual in the way of education will be undertaken by the British Columbia government shortly when a school for cougar hunters is opened on Vancouver Island.

The "Cougar College" will be part of the B.C. game commission's new predatory animal control plan and its head will be Jimmy Dewar, Chief Game Warden for B.C., who has gained the reputation of "King of the Cougar Hunters".

Dewar, who stays on the trail until "I get the cat", left here on a little business trip—to hunt and kill a ferocious male cougar on nearby Bowen Island which has been reported causing damage to property and endangering livestock.

Hunter of the dangerous puma for 20 years, Dewar will have at the school five cougar hounds imported at $500 each, from Arizona to form a nucleus for scientifically planned kennels to breed cougar hounds.

Big Cuban Crop May Boost Sugar

OTTAWA—Depressing reports on the domestic sugar beet crop, its front and late seeding have failed as yet to sour a generally bright picture on the consumer sugar front.

Most important "good" news is that the big Cuban crop is running a good 10 per cent better than forecast. This means at least six million, instead of 5.5 million tons from that one country. It means that the "phantom" allotment made by the allocation authorities "some months back" may actually be realized. It means very likely that the extra dividend promised Canadian housewives instead of 5.5 million tons from that one country.

The "phantom" allotment made by the allocation authorities "some months back" may actually be realized. It means very likely that the extra dividend promised Canadian housewives instead of 5.5 million tons from that one country.

Because of the larger-than-expected crops in Cuba and other areas, this phantom supply will now most likely be realized. Thus if Canada is successful in shortly obtaining physical delivery from Cuba of her entire allotment, she will be in a comfortable position relative to the present ration and future action by United States toward decontrol. Much of Canada's share of the Cuban crop is already here in Canada.

The 1946 total comprises 48,700 single dwellings, 2,456 units in semi-detached or doubles, 510 in rows or terraces, 1,748 in duplexes, 687 in triplexes, 2,200 in apartments or flats, 2,486 in business premises and apartments, 11 other types, and 4,809 in conversions or reconversions.

Woman Mayor Shows Authority

SOAP LAKE, Wash.—Mayor Maggie Walthe, who fired the town marshal and took away his station wagon, reckons "a woman can take care of this one-horse town. I'll be the marshal until a better one comes along."

The 270-pound Mrs. Walthe is the key figure in a lively "one-horse town" controversy.

"Maggie the Mayor" said recently that she had asked for Marshal James Rigas' resignation. Rigas' wife said it was because he had confiscated 10 punch-balls at two taverns.

This the mayor denied indignantly.

"In a fourth-class town, what the mayor says goes," she asserted. "And it's the town marshal that goes this time."

Will the new mayor-marshal carry a weapon?

"I wish don't carry guns," she explained, "if necessary, I'll carry a shillelagh."

MIGHT BE WORSE
Woman Magazine says in England men who helped with the housework during the war found it wasn't half as bad as women picture it; actually, most women love housework because they can come and go as they like. Those are the opinions of Sir Thomas Bennett, Britain's wartime comptroller of temporary housing.

In early times the equivalent of the modern hairpin was called a "bodkin".

VETERANS MARKET GOWNS MADE FROM FLOUR SACKS

VANCOUVER.—"Looking like a flour sack" need not be a derogatory term any more since three Second World War veterans formed the McQueen, White & Dickinson Co., to compete in the fashion world.

They had noticed the drab, ragged garments worn by people in war-ravaged and impoverished countries and decided on their new idea—colored flour sacks which could be turned into wearing apparel after the flour was delivered.

First they made a survey into the preferences of the different countries and then purchased 20,000 yards of the colorful, dual-purpose sacks in three designs—flowered, striped and plain.

Now milady in China, Greece, Poland, South America and the Philippines is proudly showing off the latest work in flour sack frocks—"made in Vancouver".

Ontario To Have Two License Plates In 1948

TORONTO.—For the first time since 1943, Ontario motor vehicles will have license plates front and rear, next year, the Ontario Highway Department announced in connection with awarding the contract for the design of the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph. The 1948 plates will carry "easy to read" white letters and figures, on a navy-blue background.

to save Life

Somewhere, on a hospital cot, someone's life is slowly slipping away.

That life can be saved. That man, or woman, or little child can be welcomed back with tears of joy by friends and loved ones.

You can be the means of keeping this thread of life from breaking. Your blood can help someone to live who otherwise would die. For blood is life itself. Will you donate your blood to the Canadian Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service?

This great new civilian Blood Transfusion Service has been opened by the Red Cross to provide whole blood and plasma, FREE... not even a Hospital Service charge, to all hospital patients in Canada who need it.

No greater gift can you ever give—for blood is life itself.

Contact your local Red Cross Branch or clinic, and say—"Yes, I will be a donor."
